About SQA

Scottish Qualification Authority

Scottish qualification Authority is an International Body in Education and Qualification Development. SQA is a not-for-profit government-sponsored organization, accountable to the Scottish Government, and sits at the heart of Scotland's world-renowned education system.

- The SQA has over 100 years' experience in developing qualifications and qualifications systems.
- Over 20 years' experience of working internationally in partnership with schools, colleges, universities, employers, training organizations, industry professionals, professional bodies, and governments.

SQA Advanced Qualifications

- SQA Advanced Qualifications are internationally recognized higher education qualifications at certificate and diploma level
- They have been developed to meet the skills needs of employers, and the requirements of education professionals, and to enable advanced entry into many undergraduate degree programs in universities and higher education institutions

International Recognition

SQA's Advanced Qualifications are aligned to the Scottish Credit and Qualifications Framework (SCQF). The SCQF is a way of comparing qualifications; it covers achievements such as those from school, college, university, and many work-based qualifications.

The SCQF also illustrates the relationships between Scottish qualifications and those in the rest of the UK, Europe and beyond, which can clarify international progression routes and credit transfer.

SQA's Advanced Qualifications have also been evaluated by the following bodies involved in certifying qualifications

- The Academic Credentials Evaluation Institute (ACEI)
- World Education Services (WES)
- UK NARIC

This analysis provides further understanding of the value of SQA qualifications, the calibre of those who have achieved them, and how they compare with programs of study offered in universities and colleges around the world.
